THE SCHOOL OF LAW

GENERAL STATEMENT

History.—The law school, which developed into the School of Law of the University, was founded in 1843 at Chapel Hill as a private school by William H. Battle, then a judge of the Superior Court, later a justice of the Supreme Court of the State. In 1845 Judge Battle was made Professor of Law in the University, and it was provided that the degree of Bachelor of Laws should be conferred on those completing the prescribed two-year course. From the records of the University, however, it seems that few degrees were actually conferred. For a long time the school maintained a certain independence of the University. The Professor of Law received no salary, though he enjoyed the fees from his classes, and the students were not entirely subject to the discipline of the University.

This was the position of the school from its formation until 1899, a period which covered the professorship of Judge Battle, who retired in 1879, two years when the law classes were conducted by Hon. Kemp P. Battle, then President of the University, and the professorship of Dr. John Manning, elected 1881, died 1899. In 1899 the school was completely incorporated into the University, with the late Judge James C. MacRae, previously a justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, as the first Dean of the Law School.

Member of the Association of American Law Schools.—The Law School is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, an association composed of sixty-three of the leading law schools in the United States, and including the law schools of such universities as Harvard, Yale, Cornell, and Chicago. The object of this association is to improve legal education in America, and member schools are required to maintain certain high standards relating to entrance requirements, faculty, library, and curriculum.

Approved by the American Bar Association.—The American Bar Association has fixed certain standards which, in its opinion, should be observed by law schools in the preparation of applicants for admission to the practice of law, and the schools conforming to the standards are classed as "approved law schools," formerly known as "Grade A Schools." Such schools require at least two years of college study for entrance followed by a three year course for full time, and a longer course for part time students, and must have a sufficient number of teachers devoting their entire time to the school and an adequate library for the use of its students.

The University of North Carolina Law School has complied with these requirements and is one of sixty-four schools classed as "approved law schools."

RECOMMENDATIONS AS TO PRE-LEGAL STUDY

While only two years of college work is required for entrance to the Law School, the faculty recommends that if practicable, the period of pre-legal preparation be extended to three years. A thorough grounding in English composition, and a competent understanding of the social, political, and economic background, as well as the habit of vigorous and sustained mental effort, are essential prerequisites to a professional training which will fit a man for a career of distinction rather than mere mediocrity, at the Bar. The pace of competition in the future will be set by those who have been trained in the great modern law schools, many of which now require an academic degree for admission.

The following extract from the bulletin of the Iowa Law School is pertinent:

> Investigations made at the law school of the University of Iowa during the past year as to what relation, if any, exists between the quality of a student's work in law school and the quantity and quality of his preliminary academic preparation show—
> 1. Students who have completed three years or four years of academic study average, as a group, considerably higher in their law studies than students who have completed only two years of college preparation.
> 2. A student who has done poor work in his college courses normally does unsatisfactory law school work. The story of the college loafer who becomes a serious-minded law student usually is a myth.

3. The highest average of failures in law work is among students who commence law study when less than twenty-one years of age and after only two years of college preparation.

Of the entering class in the Law School in 1927, 69 per cent had completed three or four years of college work.

The following courses (or their equivalents in other colleges) are strongly recommended by the law faculty as courses to be taken where only two years of college work are intended to be spent before entering the Law School:

FIRST YEAR	SECOND YEAR
English I or Ia	Two of English 3, 4 and 5, or English 21, in the discretion of the Dean of the College.
Mathematics 1-2	Government 1-2
History 1-2	Economics 1-2
A Natural science	History 3-4 (English) or 7-8 (American) or Psychology 1-2
A Foreign language French, Latin, or German	Another course in the same foreign language

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION TO THE LAW SCHOOL

Regular Students

In order to enter the Law School as a regular student, the student must (a) present evidence of vaccination, and certificates as to college entrance requirements, as prescribed in the General Catalogue of the University and (b) must have completed two years of college work, approved by the Registrar of the University as qualifying him to enter the third or Junior class in the College of Liberal Arts, and before receiving the law degree must have completed eighteen college courses (60 semester hours) or their equivalent.

Special Students

A limited number of persons who are twenty-one years of age or over may be admitted as special students upon satisfying the Law Faculty that they have such training and ability as will enable them to profit by the instruction given in the school. The number of special students admitted each year may not exceed ten per cent of the average number of students first entering the school during the two preceding years.

Admission to Advanced Standing

A student from another school of law, in which the requirements for admission are at least as high as in this school, may be admitted to advanced standing for the degree of LL.B. As a rule no more than one year's work will be so credited without residence, but with the consent of the Law Faculty, two years' work may be credited in exceptional cases, but the last year of work for the law degree must be done in residence. A student seeking admission to advanced standing must present satisfactory evidence that the work taken in another school is substantially equivalent to that given in the corresponding year here, both in the character of the work covered and in the amount of time devoted to each subject.

The Degrees of A.B. and LL.B.

The University offers a combined course in the College of Liberal Arts and in the Law School by completing which students may receive the two degrees of A.B. and LL.B. in six years instead of the seven years required for the two degrees in the regular course.

Upon the completion of the courses in the College of Liberal Arts outlined below before matriculation in the Law School, and the completion of the first two years of Law, students may receive the degree of A.B., and upon the completion of the third year in the Law School, the degree of LL.B.

The Law School recommends that at least one of these courses be advanced composition, Eng. 21.

The Law School recommends that the courses in History and Government be courses in English and American History or Government.

The A.B. degree, on this basis, is conferred at the end of the fifth year (second year in Law) provided the student has satisfactorily passed 60 semester hours in the Law School.

The Degree of S.B. in Commerce and LL.B.

The University offers a combined course which leads to the degree of S.B. in Commerce at the end of five years and LL.B. at the end of six years.

The first three years of this combined course are in the School of Commerce and are devoted to the subjects outlined below. The last three years are in the Law School and are devoted to the courses prescribed for the LL.B. degree.

4. Prepare and have accepted for publication in The Law Review an article of at least ten pages, or case notes which in the aggregate shall be at least eight pages in length.

The Degree of Doctor of Law was conferred in 1927 upon Mr. William Harrison Abernathy.

ATTENDANCE, EXAMINATIONS, GRADES, ELIMINATION OF STUDENTS

Attendance. Since fairly regular attendance upon classes is essential to the proper mastery of a subject, no excuses for absence are accepted, and a student who is absent for as much as 15 per cent of the total number of class hours in any subject will be dropped from the course, and for a lesser number of absences, the Dean may reduce the credit given in the course to the student so absent.

Examinations. Preliminary hour examinations will be held in each course at the last class meeting in the third week of November, and also at the end of the first semester hour examinations will be given in all courses running through the year. Individual research assignments may be substituted for preliminary examinations. Final examinations are held at the end of the first semester in the subjects which are then completed, and at the close of the year in all other subjects.

Grades. The grading of students will be indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, and F, representing respectively excellent, good, satisfactory, fair, and failed. A student receiving the grade of F (failed) in any subject will be required to repeat the course.

Elimination of Students. A student must obtain a grade of D or better in at least two-thirds of the total number of semester hours for which he registers, and any student who fails to do so shall thereby automatically be excluded from further work in the school. He may be reinstated upon such showing and upon such conditions as may be required by the Law Faculty.

Any instructor, with the concurrence of the Dean, may drop a student from a course at any time, for unsatisfactory work, poor attendance, or other good cause.

NUMBER OF HOURS OF WORK REQUIRED AND PERMITTED

The normal amount of work is fourteen or fifteen class hours per week. Not more than sixteen hours of law work may be taken, nor if academic work is being taken at the same time, may more than twelve hours of law be taken with one academic course.

No student taking fewer than ten hours weekly will be considered as studying law within the rule of the Supreme Court requiring two years of study of law as a necessary preliminary of applicants for license to practice in North Carolina.

DIVISION OF ACADEMIC YEAR: DATES

Work in the School is divided into two semesters instead of into three quarters. The first semester begins at the same time as the fall quarter of the College of Liberal Arts, and ends on the last Saturday in January. The second semester begins on Monday after the last Saturday in January and ends at the same time as the third quarter of the College of Liberal Arts.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

The chief aims oft he School of Law are to train students thoroughly in the principles of the common law, to develop their power of legal reasoning, and to teach the fundamentals of North Carolina practice. The case method of instruction is used to attain these ends. The relative advantages of this method are no longer debated. More than 90 per cent of the members of the Association of American Law Schools have adopted it. This method discloses the common law principles, not as mere sequences of words—but as living forces. The analysis and interpretation of cases under a fire of Socratic questioning tends to develop in a student the mental acuteness and accuracy which mark a real lawyer. The case method provides an education of ideas rather than words, establishes an active and critical rather than a passive attitude, and produces real mental power rather than facility in repeating definitions, maxims, and high sounding phrases. The modern law school with this improved method of instruction has much greater relative advantages over office reading than had law schools of an earlier period, when they were looked upon merely as a means of imparting information.

READING COURSE

In addition to the regular class-work and collateral reading, it is the aim of the school to develop the habit among the students of frequent informal conferences with faculty members, over the difficulties and problems which are encountered in their studies. It is believed that this personal contact between student and teacher, which is no longer possible in the larger schools, is of inestimable value and will foster some of the professional spirit which was engendered by the former association between lawyer and student in the days when legal instruction was secured in law offices. To this end a Reading Course has been introduced for first-year students. This course will consist solely of the reading of books designed to acquaint the student at the outset with some of the history, general ideas, outstanding personalities and rich literature of the law. The students will be divided into small groups, each of which will be assigned to a different professor as advisor, with whom individual conferences on the readings will be held. The books selected for 1927-28, to which additions may be made in the discretion of each instructor, are:

Vinogradoff: Common Sense in Law.
Morgan: Introduction to the Study of Law.
Jenks: Short History of English Law.
Legal Biography: (a) Vol. I, Part V, Select Essays in Anglo-American Legal History, "Bench and Bar from Norman Times to the Nineteenth Century"; (b) Lives of Pinkney, Marshall, Webster and Benjamin, and Judges Pearson, Ruffin, and Gaston, in "Great American Lawyers".
Pound: The Spirit of the Common Law.
Gray: The Nature and Sources of the Law.
Hohfeld: Fundamental Legal Conceptions (introduction and first two essays).
Cardozo: The Nature of the Judicial Process.

AIM OF THE SCHOOL

The aim of the school is to develop competent lawyers and not merely to prepare students for the bar examination. The course extends over three years, and subjects are offered in what seems the most advantageous sequence. Students are required to follow the order of the curriculum and one who stops before completing it will not have a comprehensive or adequate legal education. While no particular attention is paid to preparing men for the bar examination our students have been successful in passing it. Indeed, no one, after graduating from this school, has failed, so far as those now administering the school are aware, to pass the bar examination of this state on his first attempt.

SUBJECTS OF INSTRUCTION

All subjects in the first year are prescribed. Those in the second and third year are elective, but second-year students may not elect third-year subjects except by permission of the Dean.

EVIDENCE
Not given in 1927-28. It will be given in the Summer Session of 1928 by Prof. E. M. Morgan, of Harvard University Law School.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL

The summer school in law offers opportunity for the students to supplement the work of the long session by taking additional courses, some of which are not given in the long session, or to shorten the period of study by completing the work for the law degree in two long sessions and three summer sessions. It has been the practice to secure distinguished judges and law teachers from other institutions as visiting professors in the summer school. Among these have been Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy and Associate Justices George W. Connor and W. J. Brogden of the Supreme Court of North Carolina and Professors A. L. Green, Yale University; Young B. Smith, Columbia University and J. W. Madden, University of Pittsburgh. In the summer session of 1927, sixty-five students were enrolled and eleven states were represented in the student body. A bulletin announcing the courses to be given in the summer of 1928 will be issued early in that year.

THE LAW BUILDING

The Law School occupies Manning Hall, named for the late Dr. John Manning, formerly a distinguished professor in the school. The building was erected in 1923, and besides being modern and commodious, is particularly notable for beauty of design.

THE LAW LIBRARY

The library is an extensive one of about 12,500 volumes which with books ordered and to be ordered during the current year will be increased to about 14,000. It comprises the reports of the courts of last resort of all the states, either in official volumes or the National Reporter System, The United States Supreme Court Reports, The Federal Reporter, The New York Supplement, Illinois Appellate Reports, The English Reports Reprint, The Law Reports (English), the local, Federal and English Statutes, and a comprehensive selection of digests, encyclopedias, text books and law periodicals.

THE NORTH CAROLINA LAW REVIEW

The North Carolina Law Review, issued quarterly, is published by the Law School. It is devoted to the discussion of general and local legal problems and new cases, especially those of interest to North Carolina lawyers. The notes on recent cases are prepared by the Student Editors, in consultation with faculty advisers. Selection of the student editors is made by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, and membership on the Editorial Board is the highest scholastic honor attainable by a law student before graduation.

LAW CLUBS AND LAW SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

The Law School Association was founded in September, 1923, to promote the interests of the Law School. It initiated and now operates the Law Clubs, organized as courts, in which first year students investigate authorities, prepare briefs and argue cases involving questions of law arising in their courses of study. These cases are framed by members of the faculty and the arguments are presided over by a court consisting of one faculty member acting as Chief Justice and two third-year students acting as Associate Justices. At the end of each year the winners in these preliminary arguments argue the final case of the year before members of the Bar. The first of these final arguments was made before the late United States District Judge H. G. Connor; the second, before Associate Justice George W. Connor of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, the late Judge J. Lloyd Horton, and Judge R. W. Winston; the third, before Judge N. A. Sinclair, Judge G. E. Midyette, and Judge C. W. Harris. Membership in these Clubs is voluntary. Last year fifty-four students out of a class of sixty joined the clubs, filed briefs and made arguments. Next year the Law Clubs will operate as law courts in the fall term and as law offices in the spring term, so as to introduce first-year students to the work of the court room and the law office.

In order to bring the students and the faculty of the Law School into a coöperating relationship with the members of the bench and bar, a number of lawyers are invited to the Law School during the year to discuss various phases of the active practice of law. This series of lectures was begun by the late Chief Justice Clark and Associate Justices Stacy, Adams, Clarkson and Varser. Last year the plan of lectures involved the steps in a law suit from its origin to its conclusion. Mr. James H. Pou of the Raleigh bar discussed the Establishment of a Law Practice; Mr. Kenneth C. Royall of the Goldsboro bar, the Preparation of a Case for Trial; Judge George Rountree of the Wilmington bar, the Examination of Witnesses; Mr. A. L. Brooks of the Greensboro bar, the Argument of a Case before Court and Jury; Mr. Charles W. Tillett, Jr., of the Charlotte bar, the Preparation of Brief and Argument of Case before Appellate Court. Also Mr. Charles S. Whitman of New York, President of the American Bar Association, spoke to the Law School under the auspices of the Law School Association. Next year with the coöperation of a number of the leading members of the bar, this work will be carried forward on an even more extensive scale, with the purpose of bringing the class-room closer to the court room and the law office and the work of the Law School closer to the needs of the legal profession.

The Law School Association also seeks to bring the influence of the legal tradition into the lives of law students. It is collecting photographs of the judges of the trial and appellate courts of North Carolina from the earliest days to the present. It is also securing oil paintings of men who have been outstanding in North Carolina's legal history. Thus far portraits of Judge William Horn Battle, founder of the private school out of which the Law School developed, Judge John Hall Manning, for whom the present law building is named, and former Chief Justice Shepherd of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, have been presented to the Law School on invitation of the Law School Association. Steps are being taken to secure etchings of the more famous members of the bench and bar in America and England.

PRIZES

The Hill Law Review Prize, established by George Watts Hill, Esq., of the Durham Bar, is an award of fifty dollars to the student editor who makes the best total contribution to the Law Review during the school year. It was won in 1927 by Mr. Samuel Elton Vest.

The Callaghan Prize in Law. A copy of the Cyclopedic Law Dictionary is offered by Callaghan & Co., Law Publishers, to that member of the senior class each year who obtains the highest general average in his work for the year.

Legal Research Prize. Offered by the American Law Book Company, is given to the student who makes the highest average in the Legal Research Course.

ADDITIONAL OPPORTUNITIES OF UNIVERSITY LIFE

Students in the Law School may be admitted without additional expense to the courses given in the departments of Economics, English, Philosophy, and History in the College of Liberal Arts, subject to the rules stated as to the number of hours which a student may take, and subject to the approval of the Dean of the School of Law. A student taking such a course must satisfy the entrance requirements for the course selected.

Students of the School may become members of the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies, where they may take part in or witness debates of a high order and train themselves in parliamentary law.

As students of the University, they enjoy all the privileges of the University library, the University gymnasium, and the organizations of the University generally, literary, social, and athletic.
